Anton Collins Mitchell LLP
Denver, Colorado

Professional Profile

Experience:

David Taylor currently participates in all phases of client service in the tax department to ensure the efficient handling of his clients' personal and commercial tax needs. Dave's background includes over twenty-three years experience in tax and business advisory services. During his career, he has helped clients with business and tax matters in areas such as manufacturing, distribution, professional and financial services and nonprofit entities.

He has studied and reviewed Accounting Principles Board (APB) Opinion No. 11 (Accounting for Income Taxes), Statement of Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 5 (Accounting for Contingencies), SFAS No. 109 (Accounting for Income Taxes) and Financial Accounting Standards Board Interpretation (FIN) No. 48 (Accounting for Uncertainty in Income Taxes). Through his continuing professional development activities and his public accounting and private company work experiences David has developed the skills and experience in the implementation and documentation of the income tax positions and related estimates as required by the provisions of FIN 48.

Dave's hallmark is his meticulous attention to his clients' overall portfolios, anticipating impending difficulties, foreseeing potential opportunities and crafting effective, innovative solutions in time to help achieve their full benefits. Dave's longstanding client relationships facilitate his ability to act as a sounding board for complex tax questions and maintain an ongoing evaluation of his clients' positions in areas where difficulties may arise.
